INTRODUCING THE McMILLAN A-5 PROFESSIONAL TACTICAL STOCK: TOP SHOOTERS HANDPICKED THE BEST FEATURES FROM OUR LEGENDARY A-SERIES.

Precision CNC inletting.

Rounded edges here are more comfortable in the hand.

Different molds fit each action perfectly: Remington, Winchester, Sako 75, Savage, Weatherby Mark V.

Weight ranges from 2.5 lbs. – 4.5 lbs, depending on accessories.

Thumb shelf on top gives choice of thumb position.

3 different cheek piece options.

3 different butt system options

Bottom of buttstock is flat for better tracking on sandbags and other field-improvised rests.

Dual purpose butt hook is fully functional for controlling the stock with the non-trigger hand, but out of the way if you choose not to use it.

Forend is wider and flatter than any A-series stock for greater bag stability.

Hand-laid fiberglass for strength and weatherproof accuracy.

Lower center of gravity than any stock in A-series for enhanced stability.

Uses the popular trimmer A-3 pistol grip.

Options shown: fixed comb, fixed length of pull with Decelerator pad.

Options shown: adjustable saddle-type cheekpiece, 3-way adjustable butt system.

Options shown: thumb-wheel adjustable cheek-piece, spacer system with presentation pad.

Scope, rifle and bipod not included.

THE A-SERIES. THE PROFESSIONAL'S STANDARD.

A-5: Combines the most popular features of the entire A-series.

A-4: Current issue on the Marine's M40A3 rifle.

A-3: Lightweight version of the A-2. Current issue for FBI; departments of Justice, Energy, Customs and Treasury.

A-2: Current issue US Navy Seals. Originally designed for FBI's Hostage Rescue Team.

M40A1: Original issue on the Marine's M40A1. The forerunner of today's modern tactical rifle and still in service with many units.

PROFESSIONAL SHOOTERS SPOKE. WE LISTENED.

The FBI likes a lighter stock. The USMC prefers a butt hook. The Department of Treasury uses a slim pistol grip. After 28 years building our country's professional tactical stocks, we asked top marksmen to describe their ideal "dream stock."

The result is the new McMILLAN A-5. This newest member of the A-series combines the most popular features from all our professional tactical rifle stocks into one state of the art package.

The A-5 offers superior ergonomics, combat-proven construction and McMILLAN's weatherproof, benchrest accuracy. All backed by a lifetime warranty.
